Handy hints

Three-string power-chords give a stronger tone; professionals favour these forms. It is best to use a finger on each note in F#5 and B# - this gives you more control of the sound. For the E# form place the pad of the index finger flat on 4th & 5th strings (2nd fret). The heavy disco rhythm that is a feature of Born This Way needs to be played with the down & up strokes exactly as written; this creates the accenting you hear on the recording. To learn more about power-chords and the full bar-chords they belong to, check out pages 4 - 9 of Modern Guitar Chord Styles, Volume 2.
